Ha Long Bay is one of Viet Nam's most famous natural attractions, located in the northeastern part of the country. Known for its stunning emerald waters and thousands of towering limestone islands topped with rainforests, Ha Long Bay has become a UNESCO World Heritage site. Tourists visit this bay not only for its natural beauty but also for its rich history and legends. According to local myths, the bay was formed when dragons descended from the heavens to protect the land from invaders. The dragons supposedly spat out jewels and jade, creating the islands and islets that dot the bay today.

Visitors to Ha Long Bay can enjoy a variety of activities, such as cruising on traditional wooden boats, kayaking between the limestone formations, and visiting ancient caves that are millions of years old. One of the most popular caves is Sung Sot Cave, known for its impressive stalactites and stalagmites. Ha Long Bay's tourism has steadily grown, attracting both local and international tourists. The best time to visit is from October to April when the weather is cooler and more pleasant.

Solar Collector

Solar collectors absorb heat from the sun's rays. They can be used to effectively heat and cool buildings. The most common type of collector for space heating is a flat plate designed to absorb both radiation falling directly on it, as well as radiation scattered by the atmosphere.

Collectors are usually panels of aluminium, copper, or steel. The panels are usually painted black. The black colouring inhibits reflection and encourages absorption. Insulation is placed behind the collector to prevent heat loss.

The collector is covered with glass or plastic. This layer allows short-wave radiation or light - to enter the collector. As the radiation passes through the glass or plastic, it is transformed from short-wave radiation to long-wave radiation - or heat. Long-wave radiation cannot pass through the glass or plastic back into the atmosphere. Therefore, the heat is trapped within the collector. Collectors are usually placed at an angle to maximise the amount of radiation falling on them.

- 25. Solar collectors can heat and cool houses with heat absorbed from .....
- 26. Collectors are coloured black to prevent .....

27. Glass and plastic are used to cover the collector so that short-wave radiation can .....
